

RE: Blocking access to websites

---

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Mac/microsoft.public.mac.explorer/2005-06/msg00003.html>

---

- From: "nathan hewitt" <nathan.hewitt@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Fri, 3 Jun 2005 14:02:07 -0700
-

Hi steve and Jane,

I don't know if IE on mac has this feature but in the internet options on the win version, under the content tab you can use whats called content advisor. in here you can enter url's of site you don't want the young/ old ones to view.

all so it has a rating system which can stop other sites with mature content from being displayed.

apart from this you can down programs like netnanny which act in the same way.

hope this helps nathan

"Steve & Jane" wrote:

- > Is there a way to restrict access to certain websites? I'm looking for a
- > preference where I can make a list of url's that won't load without a
- > password. I have children with improving surfing capabilities.

>

> Thanks,

>

> Steve

>

>

.

---

- Follow-Ups:

- ◆ Re: Blocking access to websites

- ◇ From: Steve & Jane

- Prev by Date: Explorer 5.2.3
- Next by Date: RE: Saving Passwords
- Previous by thread: Explorer 5.2.3
- Next by thread: Re: Blocking access to websites
- Index(es):

RE: Blocking access to websites

- ◆ Date
- ◆ Thread