I am currently unable to send email via my .Mac account through entourage. I can receive email, and I can send it when I log onto my account through my web-browser. The message I get is this when I try to send mail through entourage:

"An operation on the server timed out. The server may be down, overloaded, or there may be too much net traffic."

I tried deleting the account in entourage and creating it again. The password hasn't changed either. .Mac does not have an announcement that their server is down. I tried turning off my DSL modem and even reset that. Nothing. Thanks for any input.
