

Re: Attachments appearing in body of text

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Mac/microsoft.public.mac.office.entourage/2005-04/msg00804.html>

- From: Matthew Smith <matty_d@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Thu, 28 Apr 2005 09:55:57 +1000
-

In article <BE954554.6AA7%martin@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, Martin Nelson <martin@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

- > Recently I've been sending out email with two PDFs attached. One is a single
- > page and one is two pages. If I look at the sent email or bcc myself I find
- > that the one-page PDF and one, but not both pages of the two-page PDF appear
- > in the body of the text.
- >
- > I would like to either prevent any pages from appearing in the body of the
- > text or have all of them. I don't want the recipient to see the copy in the
- > body and think that's all of it.
- >
- > Anyone know how to address this?

How attachments are displayed in the body of a messages is up to the recipient's email client. You have no way of controlling this.

Entourage will display the first page of any attached PDF. It won't display any subsequent pages. Outlook on Windows, as is, won't display any pages.

.

• References:

- ◆ Attachments appearing in body of text
 - ◇ From: Martin Nelson
- Prev by Date: Entourage 2004 Calendar Conflict Notification?
- Next by Date: Contact groups
- Previous by thread: Attachments appearing in body of text
- Next by thread: Re: Attachments appearing in body of text
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread