I am experiencing the same problem in Washington, DC. I get the same banner message every time I create a new calendar event even though my MacBook Pro and Entourage are both set for Eastern Standard Time (EST). Everything displays on my calendar correctly. New events even display correctly when I create them for other time zones.

I am also running Tiger 10.4.5 and using the apple "Apple Americas/U.S. (time.apple.com)" to automatically set the time on my laptop.

This is not crucial since everything displays correctly, but it is annoying.

You're making events to occur next week or later – in Daylight Savings Time – but during Standard Time? I discovered a bug to do with that just for tomorrow (actually, in Washington, that's now "today" – April 2) being the first day of EDT when the time changes after the day begins. It's a one-day business only – April 2 It happens again in October on the day Standard Time returns. Are you getting it for any other day? Once the time changes at 2 AM to Daylight Savings, I think you'll find it all fixes itself.
