

Re: Office 2001: Can't save in Excel or Word

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Mac/microsoft.public.mac.office.excel/2004-05/0053.html>

From: Jim Gordon MVP (goldkey74_at_WarmerThanWarmMail.com)

Date: 05/04/04

Date: Mon, 03 May 2004 21:22:24 -0400

OK – My next suggestion is to trash "Carbon Registration database" and see what happens.

–Jim

On 5/3/04 10:59 AM, in article 1083596344.765229@news-1.nether.net, "omjaroo" <omjaroo@yahoo.com> wrote:

>
>> So add-em up! Word, 40 Meg + Excel 25 Meg + MacOS 75 Meg + Every Other >> Application. Make sure you have plenty of real RAM for your computer.
>>
>> –Jim
>
> Jim,
> Thanks for your helpful and speedy reply.
> When I went to implement your suggestion, I realized I had shut my > virtual memory off in the memory control panel. I turned it on, cycled
> the machine and without making any other changes opened and saved a word > file, no problem. I thought we had the problem. I increased the ram > allocated to all my office programs to the suggested levels (I have 224 > megs of physical ram and a gig of HD space).
>
> Then I opened on of the excel files I had brought over from the PC and > bingo, no save. I can't save or save as in excel or word. I cycled the > machine, turned virtual memory off and then on, all to no avail.
>
> I'll try renaming normal.doc and throw out the preferences again. And I > guess PC files are out for now. Any more ideas? Thanks
>
> Jared

--

Jim Gordon

Mac MVP

*Everyone is encouraged to post answers to any unanswered questions whenever you see one that you know the answer to.