

Re: Graph does not appear in Powerpoint exported from Mac to a PC

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Mac/microsoft.public.mac.office.powerpoint/2004-02/0137.html>

From: Jim Gordon MVP (goldkey74_at_WarmerThanWarmMail.com)

Date: 02/28/04

Date: Fri, 27 Feb 2004 23:11:06 -0500

Hi Mike,

What steps did you take in the creation of the graph? For example, did I you use Insert > Object or maybe double-clicked on a template or perhaps some other way. What kind of graph was it (bar, stacked, etc)

Graphs are displayed by another application – either Excel or Microsoft Graph. If the windows user does not have whichever application that you used installed on their computer they won't see the graph.

–Jim

--

Jim Gordon

Mac MVP

Everyone is encouraged to post answers to any unanswered questions whenever you see one that you know the answer to.

On 2/26/04 9:22 PM, in article

54cf9d8e.0402261822.621ae592@posting.google.com, "Mike Hall"

<m.hall@aims.gov.au> wrote:

> Hi,

>

> When I create a graph entirely within Powerpoint (Office for OSX) on a

> Mac – from data input to graph creation – and it appears OK on > Powerpoint as it should. When I simply transport the file to a PC all > slides come through OK except for those graphs created – the only > thing that shows up is a big fat red cross. Double clicking doesn't > help.

>

> Not impressed with the "total compatibility between platforms" claim

> as one would have thought a graph created entirely within a Microsoft

> Product on a Mac and sent across to a PC platform within the same

> Microsoft product on a PC would automatically do so with full > replication without a lot of stuffing around.

>

> Any help greatly appreciated.

>

> Mike