Sorry Ray:

Can't answer that one until you tell us the versions of the software involved. Generically, you need to ask her what format she sent you, and install the appropriate applications.

Hint: Whatever it was, it was NOT "QuickTime" :-). She needs to tell you what the file format is that she sent you, and you need to tell us what you're using.

With the amount of information you sent so far, the only thing we can say is "Buy a Mac..." :-)

Cheers

Recently had a friend send me a Word file of some lyrics to a song she had written and used in a QuickTime movie she made.

When I opened the file, it displays a white box, then a "letter", then a white box, "letter", etc, along with other "hieroglyphics". Makes for tough reading.

What can I do on my end to have it appear in a normal text mode ?

thanks
ray
