

.docx files

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Mac/microsoft.public.mac.office.word/2007-05/msg00342.html>

- From: jsafdie@xxxxxxxxxxx
 - Date: 18 May 2007 14:26:26 -0700
-

Folks,

I'm unable to open .docx files sent to me by students even after I've downloaded the new Beta patch, the XML converter, which purports to save .docx files in a .rtf format.

I'm running the Office:Mac 2004 Student and Teacher Edition, and the problem is that when I click on the .docx file, it doesn't download to my desktop AS a file -- instead, it downloads as some sort of zip folder. And when I open that folder, I get a few more folders with a lot of .xml files in them -- the Converter I downloaded doesn't know what to do with any of them.

I'd greatly appreciate any hints anyone has about this -- I could just get my students to save everything they send as regular .doc files, but if they have the new Office, they should be able to use it.

Thanks,

Joe

.