

Re: Can't delete from Work menu

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Mac/microsoft.public.mac.office.word/2007-08/msg00443.html>

---

- From: Jack <jayankeney@xxxxxxx>
  - Date: Wed, 22 Aug 2007 10:52:21 -0700
-

On Aug 21, 9:51 am, Jack <jayanke...@xxxxxxx> wrote:

All of a sudden I cannot remove documents from the Work pulldown menu. Just as the Help file describes, this used to be a simple matter of hitting Option/Command and the Minus Sign at which time the cursor changed to a large Minus Sign itself. Then any document clicked on in the Work menu would be taken off the list. Now, my Word 2004 on a new Intel iMac G5 won't change the cursor at all, and therefore nothing can be deleted from the Work menu. "Add to Work Menu", on the other hand, functions fine.
Any idea what happened or a way to fix it?

Guys,

I thank you for your responses, but none of them have solved my problem posted 8/21/07 of not being able to remove individual items from my Work menu.

It turns out that Zoom had indeed been turned on in the Universal Access pane and I understand that would have intercepted the Option/Command/- keystroke combination. So I have turned it off.

Still cannot delete individual items from the Work menu. Option/Command/- does not do anything now, much less give me the desired bold minus sign.

I have disabled Universal Access from the Keyboards pane of System Preferences.

Still can't remove specific items (or any items for that matter) from the Work menu. And, yes, I have tried quitting Word and restarting my Intel iMac G5.

Please understand, I am not trying to remove the whole Work menu, which seems to have been the suggestion about "ToolsCustomizeRemoveMenuShortcut" from CyberTaz.

Re: Can't delete from Work menu

And if I am reading the suggestion from Clive Huggan correctly, he seemed to have lost the command he was looking for.

So does anyone else have any suggestions for removing specific items from the Work menu?

.