That's for the advice but please note that I had to search the discussion forum to discover how to do a task that's straightforward in all previous versions of word. This check box is nowhere described in any obvious place in the help files related to bulleted lists. In previous versions I could change paragraph spacing in a bulleted list directly from the formatting palette, now I have to go into a pull-down menu EACH time I need to do this task. And this improves productivity how?
