Hi all. I seem to have botched my XP login screen by messing with admin status options. Now when I start my XP machine in VPC and I get to the login screen, there's no username at all on the right side of the dividing line, just blank space. I had previously just been using an admin account for everything, which basically meant just checking my webpage designs in various PC browsers.

Is there some way to reset this so I can avoid having to re-install the virtual machine and all of my software? Please say yes, please say yes....

Thanks for any help you can offer. By the way, it's VPC7, and XP sp2 on a G4 iBook 933 OSX 10.3.9.

Have you tried booting into Safe Mode, F8 at startup?

Where were you changing options? Can you post a screen shot?
