

C00D1197

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Media/microsoft.public.windowsmedia.player/2004-09/3083.html>

From: Frédéric (frederic.hermeline_at_free.fr)

Date: 09/10/04

Date: Fri, 10 Sep 2004 03:52:43 -0700

i got the same error code,

is it on win98se ?

i can't access the tools --> option --> network tab
which allow to modify the proxy and protocol parameters.

do you have the same trouble ?

>-----Original Message-----

>I am trying to play a video and a pop-up appears telling me that :

>

>Windows Media Player cannot play the specified file. This error message may >occur for one of the following reasons:

>

>The path to the file is not valid. If you typed a Uniform
Resource Locator

>(URL) address in the Open URL dialog box, be sure the file name is spelled >correctly and the path to the file is correct, and then try again. If you >clicked a link on a Web page, clicking the link again may fix the problem.

>The server is down or busy. Try to connect to the server at a later time.

>Some network protocols in the Player are not enabled.
Enable all network

>protocols, and then try again.

>The proxy server settings for Windows Media Player are not configured

>properly. Verify that your proxy settings are correct, and then try again.

>

>Can someone tell me in simple terms what to do?

>

>Thanks!

microsoft.public.windowsmedia.player: C00D1197

>
>
>