Hello,

I too have had the same problem. I've had the computer ~1 month. In the first month WMP played all files. Now all a sudden, it will not play WMV files. I tried your fix (under admin mode) and could not get the WMPASF.dll to work nor the WMPCORE.dll either. Also, after performing a search, neither is even on the computer, anywhere. However, when I did my sfc, no problems were found. Any suggestions?

Brian Kearney

Running the specific commands for individual dlls failed on wmpasf.dll
wmpcore.dll

The error for both stating [dll] failed to load, make sure binary is stored

in specific path or debug ..."

What next?[/color]

We'd need a list of files in the CBS log file which can be matched against common WMP components.

The fact you can't register those files might be because I missed off a step : On Vista, you have to run those commands as Administrator (you'd be operating as a regular user account)

This page indicates the difference : right-click cmd.exe icon to choose "Run As Administrator"

Once you've repeated those steps, try to post the cbs.log file where there are lines which indicate corruption or failure – Notepad or Word will let you search for similar failures.

I'm rather hoping ZachD (who posts on this group) might have some ideas. In the meantime, there are a range of Vista repair options at <http://www.vistax64.com/tutorials/101393-repair-vista-options-preferred-sequence.html>

This is how to try to repair the broken files :
