

Burn rights

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Media/microsoft.public.windowsmedia/2008-10/msg00049.html>

- From: "Robert McCurdy" <robertwm@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 7 Oct 2008 00:28:42 +1300
-

I get an error message from Windows media player that says:

"It is not possible to burn this list because all of the files have errors or are missing burn rights..."

It goes on to show where to get more information, and when I right click the file playing it shows:

"this file is missing media usage rights"

Huh?

I mean, it is a video made from a digital video camera for Gods sake!

Why would I need permission to burn me own stuff?

How do I turn the thing off?

And how do I give what I've created, BURN rights?

Regards

Robert McCurdy

"Anyone who tries to be funny by saying light a match....."

.... will burn right!" ;)