

Re: Verify who made/modified a doc

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Office/microsoft.public.office.misc/2004-09/0678.html>

From: VManes (vmanes_at_NOSPem>)

Date: 09/06/04

Date: Mon, 6 Sep 2004 00:19:31 -0600

When viewing a folder in Details view, you can add other columns of information – one of which is file Owner (as distinguished from author, which you point out is easily changed.) Would this be helpful?

(I don't have a system available with multiple people's files available to me till Tuesday, so I can't verify this.)

Val

--

~~~~~
www.sdsmt.edu

The best little engineering school you may not have heard of, but should have!

~~~~~
<anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:66e401c493cf$3840a310$a601280a@phx.gbl...
we are running a W2k server AD network with XP spl desktops. We have, on occasions disconnected network drives and disabled email for short tests. But we have some tests that go over severel days (1.5 hours per day for three days etc) and we have found a couple of students who swapped files between classes. we then tried getting the students to save all work in a folder and between classes, changing the permissions on the folders. The problem with this is that the IT Teachers do not have enough knowledge to enable them to change the properties themselves and as I am the only Tech, I do not have the time to do it for them. This problem is mainly with Word 2002 and VB6, which are the programs used on the extended tests.

we have cought some, as the Author in the properties box showed the other students details, but they now haw to change those details.

I was hoping that there was a way of opening the files with diferent software which would reveal details of which users made and worked on the files.

>-----Original Message-----

>I'm sure there is a way, but not perhaps in the way you suggest.

>

>Can you elaborate more on what the problem is, how they overcome the >existing control measures, and what your 'wish' is?

>

Re: Verify who made/modified a doc

microsoft.public.office.misc: Re: Verify who made/modified a doc

>Simplistically ... is it necessary to have network (presumably?) running >during test? I assume you have made rules about no cheating known and >have enforced it (expelled the ones found cheating, for example?)
>
>Students should learn that cheating is unacceptable even if possible to >easily do. Putting up too many inadequate technology-based controls to >try to prevent cheating doesn't enable that learning, nor will it stop >cheating.
>
>Hope this is useful to you. Let us know.
>
>rms
>
>
>
>
>Stephen Bloomer wrote:
>> we have a problem with students sharing each others
work >> during tests. With OfficeXP and VB6, is there a way of >> proving who has worked on an document/project? The >> standard properties canbe changed!
>.
>