Unrestricted permissions refer to the IRM technology (Information Rights Management) which is far more than a simple password protection, though it is easy to get confused. The scenario you said is that IRM is switched off (e.g. unrestricted from _that point of view_) but the .doc file has the PW protection on. I got a Word 2003 document where the menu File->Permissions show a check at "Unrestricted access" but is at the same time "password protected"?

From my point of view a password protected file cannot be "Unrestricted". It is restricted.
