I recently had a glitch while installing SP4 for Windows 2000. After reinstalling it and uninstalling various software my computer is almost back to normal, except for Office 2000.

Whenever I try to install it I get this error message and then it doesn't go any further:

Windows Installer

The system administrator has set policies to prevent this installation.

How do I change the policies to allow for the installation? I'm the only user on my home computer and I don't remember changing any policies when I reinstalled Windows 2000. Please help!!!! – Kennard
