

Re: Unicode Mode

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Outlook/microsoft.public.outlook.general/2005-02/7295.html>

From: Warren Guffey (wguffey_at_modernfold.com)

Date: 02/17/05

Date: Thu, 17 Feb 2005 08:23:11 -0500

The article explains Unicode, its benefits, and how to enforce it but not how switch back or use non-unicode. I have download the toolbox with the templates that are mentioned and will experiment.

"Roady [MVP]" <news:ust0j%23DFFHA.2876@TK2MSFTNGP12.phx.gbl...> wrote in message

> I think all your questions are answered here;

> <http://www.microsoft.com/resources/documentation/office/2003/all/reskit/en-us/outb06.msp>

>

> --

> Robert Sparnaaij [MVP-Outlook]

> www.howto-outlook.com

>

> Tips of the month:

> -What do the Outlook Icons Mean?

> -Create an Office 2003 CD slipstreamed with Service Pack 1

>

> -----

> "Warren Guffey" <wguffey@modernfold.com> schreef in bericht

> news:uUKwEsDFFHA.2600@TK2MSFTNGP09.phx.gbl...

>> We are running Outlook 2003 against Exchange 2003 and recently when we >> have setup new systems or had to recreate profiles we have been getting >> an error message when they attempt to setup their archive file using the >> old orginal one. Here is the message (summarized): "Outlook is running >> in Unicode mode against Exchange server and cannot archive items to a >> non-Unicode Outlook 97-2002 Personal Folders archive file."

>>

>> We followed a standard upgrade path from previous versions of office to >> the current and the same for Exchange from 5.5 to 2003. From what I have >> read Unicode mode seems to deal with multilingual (SP?) situations in >> email, we do not have a need or concern for this ability. What are >> options for people with existing archive files? I know I can create a new >> one but then I have to move all of the contents of the original to the >> new and some of these a pretty large and could take some time. When I >> check my system settings it indicates that it is running in non-unicode >> mode, how does this get set? I didn't noticing anything during setup for >> this option. One user had a new Windows profile created on a system with >> the same Office install; she had now problems with the archive under the microsoft.public.outlook.general: Re: Unicode Mode >> original profile but when we recreated her outlook account it gave her >> this message. We never reinstalled office at all and this doesn't make >> sense to me. I can't seem to find any documentation on how to switch from >> Unicode to non-Unicode.

>>
>> I know this is lengthy but I wanted to give as much info as possible. Any >> help or advice would be appreciated.
>>
>> Warren
>>
>
>