Sorry, I'm somehow not able to search in this forum, so this question/problem might have been posted/answered before. Anyway, here goes:

When typing a new email message (or replying to one), my lines are double spaced. So is my signature which I add with the Auto Text feature of Word. Yes, I use Word as the email editor.

I know I could avoid the problem by switching to Plain Text or maybe not using Word, but I have to as I'm corresponding in English and Japanese, and the latter language requires HTML (otherwise recipients complained of not being able to read the full text) and Word as the Japanese language editor.

So, by using HTML and Word as editor, is there still a way to avoid double spacing? I've actually entered my address using the HTML Shift>Enter command. Didn't help.

Thanks for any hints/tips.
