Re: Outlook On Two Pooters

Source: http://www.tech−archive.net/Archive/Outlook/microsoft.public.outlook/2006−03/msg00230.html

- From: "Vince Averello [MVP−Outlook]" <vince@xxxxxxxxxxxx>
- Date: Sat, 4 Mar 2006 03:22:20 −0500

Take a look here, it may help:
http://www.slipstick.com/outlook/sync.htm

"Not Telling" <not@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:440944d2$0$21848$5a62ac22@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Hi there,
>
> I'm just wondering if anyone on this Newsgroup would be able to explain to a total moron how to set up Outlook on two different computers that read the same datafile.
>
> I have a desktop and a notebook, and I'd like to have access to my contacts and old emails when I go out, and should I make any changes or additions whilst I'm on the road I'd like to have them automatically sync up when I get back to the office.
>
> I have tried to tell my notebook's Outlook to use the datafile on the desktop, but it comes back saying that the .pst file cannot be shared, even though I have shared the folder on the desktop where it lives. I have also tried setting this up with the pst file in two different shared folders on the desktop.
>
> I'm also trying to get my head around Briefcase, but if anyone knows of a better alternative when it comes to taking files out in the notebook and have them sync up when I get back, that would be super as well!

.