Well the strange thing is that if I go to contacts I only see the phone numbers from my phone... but Outlook still auto-completes all my email addresses.

Just restore from a recent backup. Anyone who uses synch software backs up their data frequently because synchronization can often make unanticipated but permanent changes to the data.

I have a Samsung i830 and had some phone numbers transferred from an older phone into it and sync-ed it to my computer with Active-Sync 3.7.1... It seems to have overridden all of my contacts stored in Outlook 2003 and replaced them with my phonebook contacts. Did I just loose over 2 years of email contacts or is there any way to retrieve them?
