I want to set up an email address on my Exchange box, so that people can email it with news articles. It will then join all the articles into one email, and send it out each day to a group of recipients. Alternatively, I can do this with Outlook if that's possible.

Anyone know how to do this? Or, is there something really simple I can install on a Windows or Linux box that will do the same job? I looked at Majordomo but I don't think this does quite what I'm after and looks like real overkill.

I've got Exchange 2003/Outlook 2003.
