Hi Marion,

The best way to get your Calendar info on your husbands Calendar is to open up your pst file under his login. Then copy/paste the relevant appointments to from your Calendar to his. Upon the next sync your info will be seen on his iPAQ.

Step 1: Identify the path of your pst file.

Login to your profile and locate the path. If you are unable to locate the path of the .pst file, do the following:

1. Open Outlook.
2. Click File -> Data File Management
3. This should list all the PST files that are present. Click Open Folder and you should find the storage path of your *.pst file.

Step 2: Opening the pst file on his login.

Login to Husband profile and open Outlook and make sure you have checked the Navigation pane under View.

1. Then Click File -> Open -> Outlook data file -> Open your pst file from the location as described in Step 1.
2. You will see two pst files open in Outlook.
3. Click Go -> Calendar and select both the Calendars. Now copy and paste the appointments you want.

You might want to change the view so that all appointments are seen at a go to enable easier copy/paste. This can be done by click View -> Arrange By -> Current View -> Select the desired view. Once done, click Go -> Mail and right click the pst file you opened and close it.

I suggest you use Categories for your appointments so that it is easier for him to bifurcate the appointments that belong to you. Take a look at the following links for better understanding on how categories can be used:

The other option you have is to mail him the appointments that you create. He can save those appointments on his Calendar. This way when he syncs he gets them on his iPAQ.
