I installed it ... no problems, although the status bar remains blank for what seems like several minutes.

Although it didn't prompt to reboot, I could not sync successfully until after I rebooted.

After rebooting it ran fine and seems to sync much, much faster than 4.1.

Microsoft has just released a public beta of Microsoft ActiveSync 4.2.
The beta is available for download from

<http://www.microsoft.com/windowsmobile/downloads/activesync42.mspx>

We encourage everyone to download, install and use this newer version and provide feedback on your experience.

We have created two ways for you to provide feedback. We have created an email alias and a newsgroup. The email alias is ASTell, and the newsgroup will be microsoft.public.pocketpc.activesync.beta. The newsgroup will go live on Monday 5/1. Based on the anticipated volume we will not be able to respond directly to every email or post, we will be reviewing all incoming messages to insure that the feedback is addresses as we continue to improve the Microsoft ActiveSync product.

Thanks,

Ken Lavering
