I have a D-Link BT USB dongle and I have followed the instructions at geekzone but still cannot access the internet.

The instructions mention a 'sharing' tab but there is no such thing under Windows XP.

Evertime I try to connect to my computer, the PDA says:

Connecting to: BT Network Access

Using: Bluetooth Null Modem

Dialing: Connect...

and then it sits there forever and eventually locks my pda up. I have no modem in my computer so I figure it's trying to access something that isn't there.

I am following the instructions (as well as they are written for Windows 2000 anyhow) and am certainly selecting 'Access via LAN' on my ipaq screen. I have typed in the IP info as described on that site and still no go.

Please help me as I am going crazy with this dumb modem message popping up!
