There is a "Card AutoRun" process that is available for ppc's... it involves placing a folder named numerically for your processor on the reoot of the card that contains an executable to do what you need to do.

google for POCKETPC AUTORUN and, after reading the results, select the "Did you mean..."

However, there is no native "batch" process for the ppc, so for this to execute as the first thing following a hard reset, you will have to generate a ppc compatible executable that will execute the file copy process.
