Please help.

I am running into an issue when I am publishing projects. After saving the project, i do collaborate, publish, all information. When I access PWA, I see the project when clicking on the project view. When I click on the project I get "There is no information to display in this view"

I have followed the steps in kb810596, and I have also checked that msadc in in the excluded paths for sharepoint.

I have checked the edit site tool and the dsn and everythign tests fine.

One of the weird things is that I can see old projects and can open them in the project view. It appears that all new projects have the issues. I even downloaded a template from microsoft to test with to see if it was a template issue. But I get the same thing.

Here are the errors that I am seeing in the event log.

Event ID 2

Source mircosoft project server

Component: PCSViews

File: ViewsDrop.cls

Line: -1

Error Number: 0x5

Description: <Description><![CDATA[Error Information: Invalid procedure call or argument

Additional Information: An error occured processing the following view :-

```
<ViewsDropData><ProjectData><EntProjectName><![CDATA[EP6 Analysis.Published]
]></EntProjectName><EntProjectID>541</EntProjectID></ProjectData><OrgGuid>projectserver</OrgGuid><Project
]]></Description>

We are running project and wss on the same server. Sql server is on an additional server. We are using AD to authenticate users.

I see several post for the same issues, but I don't see anything where it says the problem has been solved.

Any help would be appreciated.

When I publish a project I do not receive a spooler error, not is there any thing in the View Drop Folder.

The View notifications service is running.

I am seeing the following messages in the Application Event log
