

Re: Red X in Preview as Web Page

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Publisher/microsoft.public.publisher.webdesign/2004-02/0022.html>

---

From: David Bartosik – MS MVP (dbartosik\_at\_mvps.org)

Date: 02/19/04

Date: Thu, 19 Feb 2004 08:23:49 -0600

I don't know, I have no experience with 97. Doesn't look like you are doing anything incorrectly from your explanation. But I'd say you want to find out if you can actually run a web page properly. You should have a folder on your PC (in My Documents) for saving the web site to. Do the save as web and save the web site to your folder.

Then browse to that folder in Windows Explorer and double-click and index.html file.

It should automatically launch in the browser. Then see if you display the page properly and can navigate thru all the pages. This way you are testing the real html files and not temp files.

If the page will open but not display images I'd suspect the issue lies in the browser settings.

If the page opens in it's entirety than I don't know. Other than don't use preview.

--

David Bartosik – MS MVP

for Publisher help:

www.davidbartosik.com

enter to win Pub 2003:

www.davidbartosik.com/giveaway.aspx

"Port Power" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:E04BCD25-B2AE-4632-9518-CB7D027B9C56@microsoft.com...

> David,

>

> I am not sure what info you may find helpful, but here goes:

>

> Windows 98 with all current updates

> Office 97 & Publisher 97 with the available updates

> IE6 with the current updates

>

> I spent some time at your web site – it's good, but I could not find anything that would help.

>

> As far as the image files & their location is concerned, Publisher put them where it wanted to – i did not select another location.

>

> Publisher picture display is set to "detailed display" IE6 Advanced options is set to display pictures.

>

> As a test in Publisher, I created a web page using the wizard and used the pictures, graphics & text provided by the wizard – didn't add my own stuff.

microsoft.public.publisher.webdesign: Re: Red X in Preview as Web Page

When I hit the "preview web site" button, even it's own pictures & graphics don't show in IE6. Text shows ok. Publisher created a folder named pub in the C:\windows\temp folder and put the files in there.

>

> Checking the files in Windows Explorer, there is a HTML document - index.html and several Microsoft PictureIt! picture files in the format img9.gif and back.gif. Double clicking on the the image files opens them ok in PictureIt!

>

> In the preview web page, right clicking on the red X & selecting "show picture" has no effect.

>

> Hope this helps - thanks

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> ----- David Bartosik - MS MVP wrote: -----

>

> The red X is simply a placeholder for images. If you are seeing it in place of images than the images are not being loaded. This may be a number of things - because you don't have the image files, you don't have them in the correct location, you have the browser set to not display images, you have image display off in Publisher.

> Check all these factors and review my FAQ page

> <http://www.davidbartosik.com/faq.htm>

>

> If you can't figure it out post back with the version in use now and details about the files.

>

> --

> David Bartosik - MS MVP

> for Publisher help:

> www.davidbartosik.com

> enter to win Pub 2003:

> www.davidbartosik.com/giveaway.aspx

>

> "Port Power" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:44495298-9507-4219-AF52-6B7B788185A9@microsoft.com...

> > On our old computer, using Publisher 97 in Windows 98, we put together a web site, hit the preview web sit button which worked fine.

> >> We have since upgraded our computer & the tech had to reload all our programs & backed up documents.

> >> Now when we preview the web site in Publisher, the pictures & graphics show a red X, text is ok. We also tried it with a new web page created with the wizard which didn't work either.

> >> I don't know if the problem is in Publisher or IE6 or something else for that matter!

> >> Any help much appreciated.

microsoft.public.publisher.webdesign: Re: Red X in Preview as Web Page

>
>
>