

Re: I need Advice

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Publisher/microsoft.public.publisher/2004-03/0931.html>

From: Mike Jr (spam_at_cheerful.com)

Date: 03/16/04

Date: Tue, 16 Mar 2004 00:32:14 GMT

Thanks for your advice...it makes sense. Is there any book or books you would recommend for a beginner to use as a guide for acquainting themselves with Frontpage???

On Mon, 15 Mar 2004 15:48:19 -0600, "Brian Kvalheim - [MS MVP]" <publisher@mvps.org> wrote:

>Mike Jr wrote:

>

>> I want to begin writing a web page for my family complete with pictures. What product would you recommend for a newbie, Frontpage, Publisher or something else. I hope later to produce a web site for our small down. Also, I feel I would need a book of some kind to guide thru all the complexities of the program from the very basics to uploading the pages to my web site. I tried Geo Cities but it left too much to be desired. Thanks. Your help and advice will be appreciated.

>>

>> mike

>

>IMO, I recommend starting with FrontPage 2003 (because you can end with using FrontPage 2003). Publisher is designed for small businesses and home offices that want to create printing materials, and THEN possibly upload a consistent site to the web.

>

>FrontPage 2003 is for beginners and advanced, has tremendous community support for ALL of your publishing questions. However, you will need to get your own domain and web server, use the free web space provided by your ISP, or use a free website such as you mentioned, GeoCities for your website.