

Re: I've lost my publisher 2000 disk

Re: I've lost my publisher 2000 disk

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Publisher/microsoft.public.publisher/2008-04/msg00198.html>

- From: "Charles W Davis" <Anthemwebs@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 5 Apr 2008 18:30:37 -0700
-

I would certainly create a password log on for yourself, and create a guest user with little authority. "coolactuary" <coolactuary@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:2B3A4C6C-A414-4359-9D02-5F9461E61BC3@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Thanks Don.

All good sense. I think he'll use MS Word until he can find the disk. After all, MS Word is still a pretty reasonable app, used with some imagination for homework, and it's not a bad lesson to learn that fiddling and not putting things back has consequences :)

"Don Schmidt" wrote:

I'm a Publisher 2000 user and what I do when getting a new program, the first thing I do is make a copy, a "working copy" and store the original as an archive copy.

Your options are; contact Microsoft for a possible replacement, purchase a replacement from Amazon.com, contact a Publisher 2000 user and see if a copy of his/her version will work with your Product Key and of course, chat with son where your copy might be.

dschmidt AT pacifier DOT com

Don - Vancouver, USA

"May your shadow be found in happy places." - Native North American

"coolactuary" <coolactuary@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:7626ACC1-C225-4837-B102-2D8150C6CC00@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
> We have MS Office 2000 SBE, with brief manual, genuine product key (and > disks). We have disk 1 (excel, word etc). Publisher is on disk 2, which > I > believe my 11 year old son has squirreled away.

Re: I've lost my publisher 2000 disk

>
> He has an old PC on which I can't install Office 2007 (which I have, > including Publisher 07) and I'd really rather keep him away from my PC > (I
> think his ability to lose things is far reaching).
>
> I've not been able to find any genuine downloads online. Is there any > way > forward?
>
> Thanks