

Re: How are EULA's handled

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/SMS/microsoft.public.sms.misc/2005-10/msg00038.html>

- From: "Kim Oppalfens" <Kim dot Oppalfens@google mail.com>
 - Date: Wed, 19 Oct 2005 09:26:38 +0200
-

I am pretty sure responsibility would be with either the package creator, or the one pushing out the package to the machines (if that's a different person).

--

Kim Oppalfens
Telindus Belgium

MVP Windows Server System – SMS

"AllanH" <allan.hardy@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message

news:Ozfs4xC1FHA.2792@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> OK, yes, not SMS Specific, I am focused on SMS as the tool thats all. But > it is a generic issue

>

> I understand someone makes these transform / install instruction files,
> If the application vendor provides it then they are I guess saying its ok > not to show the eula

>

> However, if I or the IT department make one for program-x, so that > program-x installs silently, is that not a legal issue because the user > never sees the license agreement? Is that allowed? do people do it? Or > is it required to get transform/install instructions fro the application > vendor only?

>

>

>

>

>

> "Jeff Gilbert" <jeff.gilbert@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message

> news:%23tVwc7A1FHA.908@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

>> These applications\tactics are not SMS specific—they work the same >> whenever you need to package a program for silent installation.

>>

>> Basically all it does is create a template or some type of transform that >> setup.exe/the .msi reads to know how to install the app. Those >> transforms/.ini files or whatever, are what makes the EULA signed for the >> user and so there aren't any pop-ups for them to check.

>>

>> you just "push" the packaged program just like any other program with >> SMS.

Re: How are EULA's handled

• References:

- ◆ How are EULA's handled
◇ From: AllanH
- ◆ Re: How are EULA's handled
◇ From: Jeff Gilbert
- ◆ Re: How are EULA's handled
◇ From: AllanH
- ◆ Re: How are EULA's handled
◇ From: Jeff Gilbert
- ◆ Re: How are EULA's handled
◇ From: AllanH

- Prev by Date: Re: How are EULA's handled
- Next by Date: Re: SMS 2003 Advanced Client update cycle times (Next Run)
- Previous by thread: Re: How are EULA's handled
- Next by thread: Re: Computer not showing in collection
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread