

Re: Security setup

---

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/SMS/microsoft.public.sms.setup/2005-05/msg00207.html>

---

- From: Kim Oppalfens <kim@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Wed, 18 May 2005 16:42:56 +0200
-

Advanced security does not require schema extending.
We never need domain admin rights, we do need admin rights on all clients if you want to use client push. (Some people use domain admin accounts for these but there are definitely other options).

Kim Oppalfens
MVP SMS

In article <9F6D212F-7F2D-47DF-8945-D5C9AAB11661@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, "=?Utf-8?B?RWQgTWFZb24=?" <Ed Mason@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> says...
> I am wanting to install SMS 2003 SP1 where the servers will be in AD but we > will not be extending the schema. Can I use Advanced Security or do I have > to use Standard Security. Do I need an account with Domain Admin rights for > either of these modes?
>

—
Kim Oppalfens
SMS MVP
.

---

- References:
  - ◆ Security setup
    - ◇ From: Ed Mason
- Prev by Date: Re: SMS Maintenance Tasks missing/installed
- Next by Date: Re: Secondary site setup problem
- Previous by thread: Re: Security setup
- Next by thread: "Backup SMS Site Server" Object
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread