

Re: set date format?

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/SQL-Server/microsoft.public.sqlserver.clients/2004-04/0155.html>

---

From: John Bell (jbellnewsposts_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 04/26/04

Date: Mon, 26 Apr 2004 15:26:33 +0100

Hi

Setting the default language with `sp_configure` will give a default date format, but that can be overridden with `SET LANGUAGE` or `SET DATEFORMAT` (for input) on the connection.

John

"Janus Knudsen" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:B4328BF7-6A2A-4624-97C0-DB348D9AA197@microsoft.com...

> Hello...

> As I remember I ran across a set statement that could control the dataformat on the server?

>

> For instance:

> print cast(getdate as varchar) it returns current date and time in am/pm format, but in Denmark we're not using this format, we're using 24hour format. Obviously I could use CONVERT, but that's not an option in the current scenario!

> The print output should be in 24hour format

>

> So if anybody can remember that... :O)

>

> Kind regards

> Janus, Denmark

>