

Re: Linked Server to Excel Issue

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/SQL-Server/microsoft.public.sqlserver.programming/2005-01/4310.html>

---

From: oj (nospam_ojngo_at_home.com)

Date: 01/21/05

Date: Fri, 21 Jan 2005 15:06:06 -0800

Your proxy account does not have access to network resources.

See this article for more info:

http://msdn.microsoft.com/library/default.asp?url=/library/en-us/tsqlref/ts\_xp\_aa-sz\_8sdm.asp

--

-oj

"Raul" <raul@nothere.com> wrote in message

news:6AD242AB-BD43-49B2-AC3D-119EC788CF91@microsoft.com...

>I am using a linked server to connect SQL Server to an Excel Spreadsheet on > the network. If I'm physically on the SQL Server box I can open the > linked > server and see the named range on the desired spreadsheet. Also If I'm on > the SQL Server box I can query the spreadsheet using OPENQUERY and > everything

> comes across beautifully.

>

> However, if I connect to the SQL Server box from a different location (via > Enterprise Manager) and try to run a query using the OPENQUERY and linked > server in question. I keep getting the dreaded "error 7399: blah, blah, > blah".

>

> Any thoughts?

>

> Thanks in advance,

> Raul