

Re: switching from CAL to Processor license

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/SQL-Server/microsoft.public.sqlserver.setup/2004-10/0235.html>

From: BCHILDMUS (BCHILDMUS_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 10/18/04

Date: Mon, 18 Oct 2004 07:25:06 -0700

thank you soooooo much for your response – you can't imagine how much work you just saved me. You're right the MS knowledge base didn't help but your article did. Worked like a charm. One small correction though: the regedit that you suggested should be to change the mode value to 1 and not 0 (it was already 0 when I first checked it). Aside from that – it worked brilliantly.

thanks again:))

"Dejan Sarka" wrote:

- > Check the official article at <http://support.microsoft.com/?kbid=870617>.
- > As you will not be satisfied, I guess, check this one as well:
- > <http://www.tkdinesh.com/faq/ans/license.html>
- >
- > --
- > Dejan Sarka, SQL Server MVP
- > Associate Mentor
- > www.SolidQualityLearning.com
- >
- > "BCHILDMUS" <BCHILDMUS@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message
- > news:7A59EEAF-63A3-45FD-ADA4-EA738A559C9E@microsoft.com...
- >> We have SQL 2000 installed with 5 CALS – We need to move to the Processor
- >> license since the server would be used for internet access. My question
- > is –
- >> Do I need to uninstall the CAL version of SQL 2000 and install the
- > Processor
- >> version of SQL 2000 or is there someway I can upgrade the license without
- >> having to do reinstallation.
- >>
- >> Any info would be greatly appreciated
- >
- >
- >