Have you just installed SP2 from Microsoft. If so it could be due to this

"After some research we found out what was causing this. The client had an empty global.asa file in his sites. Which had been there for years. But after installing service pack 2 every ASP request failed. Apparently something was changed in asp.dll that causes this behavior. After removing the empty global.asa the site worked again like it did before. Have tested this behavior on 3 different machines with the same results.
