

Re: Hotfix Deployment via Login Script

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Scripting/microsoft.public.scripting.wsh/2004-04/0350.html>

From: Randy Snyder (aggie07_at_austin.rr.com)

Date: 04/22/04

Date: Thu, 22 Apr 2004 21:06:11 GMT

Jason wrote:

- > For various reasons, I need to deploy a hotfix via a login script. Writing
- > a script to install the hotfix is no problem, the problem is that my users
- > are not administrators and the hotfix runs in the user context which means
- > it's going to fail on all my user workstations. This is not an active
- > directory environment so there is no Group Policy.
- >
- > Is there any way to have my script execute the hotfix using a different set
- > of credentials?
- >
- > Any feedback would be greatly appreciated.
- >
- >

Jason,

Can you provide the following information?

(1) How many client systems need to be patched, (2) is your network setup as a domain or workgroup and (3) does the patch require a post administrative logon after it has been applied?

Thanks,

Randy