

Re: Scripting guys

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Scripting/microsoft.public.scripting.wsh/2004-06/0444.html>

From: name (nospam_at_user.com)

Date: 06/26/04

Date: Sat, 26 Jun 2004 04:54:43 -0400

Pretty good.

All he said was "have fun".

=====

The was the point.

=====

scripting is not a wunschkonzert or

"musical request programme".

"Van K. Jones" <vkjonesno@spamclarionledger.net> wrote in message news:ebKgHwIUeHA.2544@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl...

> Thanks Alex, but I've already been there. This still requires that you go > line-by-line through each past month's webcast to see if any webcast looks > like something that might have been related to scripting. I also tried to > use the search function with the webcasts section, but it only searches > through future webcasts.

>

> It would be nice if someone had already had all of 'The Scripting Guys' > webcasts grouped in one place.

>

> Thanks anyway...

>

>

> *"Alexander Riedel" <alexr@sapien.com> wrote in message
> news:e9Dpj8kUEHA.1036@TK2MSFTNGP12.phx.gbl...*

>>

>

> <http://search.microsoft.com/search/results.aspx?view=msdn&st=b&na=82&qu=scripting+webcast&s=0>

>>

>> Have fun,

>>

microsoft.public.scripting.wsh: Re: Scripting guys

> > Alex

> >

> > "Van K. Jones" <vkjonesno@spamclarionledger.net> wrote in message

> > news:%23&x9UUzTEHA.2212@TK2MSFTNGP09.phx.gbl...

> > > Does anyone have a list of all past (or on-demand) webcasts done by the > > > Scripting guys? I don't see an easy way to find these webcasts on > > > Microsoft's site.

> > >

> > > Thanks,

> > >

> > >

> >

> >

>

>