All good suggestions. And it would be a crime to put out the next version without folder and document level security.

my 2 cents

Now event list can all allow users to add two event items with time conflicts, expect another alternative option that users are NOT allowed to add two items with time conflict, that means only one event item one time. That will be easier for users to expand the usage of the event list, e.g. the event list can be used as a meeting room booking system.
