This is in continuation of my earlier question on targeting content. To summarize, we want to target content to customer from our WSS sites. Customer will be accessing their content via Extranet.

One possible solution is to target content from a site to the portal area meant for the customer. Now the basic question — Area and Site can have almost the same components like document library, lists, discussion forum, survey, etc. Which one is better for customer, particularly the customer should see only the targetted content, with some additional collaboration components. And is it possible to setup just the URL of the customer area on an extranet?

Thanks for your help,
