u posses lot of time, which i dont have rite now, first think about urself etiquette that you are asking people to dont write help in subject line, and saying that don't force you guys for message which no body did,,,and compulsing me to send replies like this on technology group...i think you just want to promote your website, COLLUTION.
thats why instead of reply you gave that address, i saw that faq side of ur website and read the message 68 administration but that doesn't solve my problem,,,and plz atleast you don't reply..i dont want any help from you..thank you.

Read my message. I was not complaining about you giving more information. I was complaining about you posting an identical message to two newsgroups.

That needlessly wastes the time of people replying to it as you may already have the answer in the other newsgroup BUT they don't see it here and give you the answer again.

It's all about newsgroup etiquette and you are ignoring that.

what's ur problem mr. mike,,,last time you said don't put help in subject line give us(responders) more text, and now i am giving more text and you are saying this,,,,,,,

are you a psycho or what??? even you are wasting my time in sending replies like this,,,,,,i want to discuss about sharepoint and you are telling don't put help and etc etc... and next time don't criticize a person uselessly when he is in problem..

Re: server error in '/' application

thank you.

You've already posted this question to the .portalserver newsgroup.
(Twice
in fact)

Please don't waste responders time by posting identical messages to different newsgroups.
