

Re: How to get the ADO Connection 's RecordAffected Value

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/VB/microsoft.public.vb.database.ado/2004-07/0237.html>

---

From: Norton (nortonwong_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 07/20/04

Date: Tue, 20 Jul 2004 18:07:50 +0800

Thx for your help ~

Regards,
Norton

"Val Mazur" <group51a@hotmail.com> wrote in message
news:OzRnlBgbEHA.2544@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl...

> Hi,

>

> You cannot get multiple record affected values. I think most likely provider

> will return the number of the affected records for the last statement (I > could be wrong), so iRecordAffected variable should contain it. If it does > not work and you need to get it, then you would need to execute statement

> separately

>

> --

> Val Mazur

> Microsoft MVP

>

>

> "Norton" <nortonwong@hotmail.com> wrote in message

> news:OLP2bxuaEHA.1248@TK2MSFTNGP11.phx.gbl...

>> Hi All,

>>

>> I am trying to execute multiple SQL Statement in one Connection.Execute

>> Method

>>

>> Such as

>> Dim sSQL as String

>> Dim iRecordAffected as integer

>>

>> sSQL = DeleteSQL & vbCrLf & InsertSQL

>> oConn.Comet.Execute(sSQL , iRecordAffected )

>>

microsoft.public.vb.database.ado: Re: How to get the ADO Connection 's RecordAffected Value

> > How can i get the insert statement's Record Affected Value?

> >

> > Thx in advance

> > Regards,

> > Norton

> >

> >

> >

>

>