

Re: Animated AVIs?

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/VB/microsoft.public.vb.database.ado/2005-03/0174.html>

From: MikeD (nobody_at_nowhere.edu)

Date: 03/23/05

Date: Wed, 23 Mar 2005 10:53:37 -0500

"dm4714" <spam@spam.net> wrote in message
news:%232K2gm7LFHA.3512@TK2MSFTNGP15.phx.gbl...
> I have a VB6 application that performs various SQL tasks. I am using a > progress bar when data is being inserted into the database. This works > well.
>
> However, I do run a few queries that take a bit of time to execute. I' not > using a progress bar for these.
>
> I was thinking that using an animated AVI showing that it is doing something > would be appropriate.
>
> Does anyone know where I can get AVIs that I can use with VB6? I'm looking > for spinning gears or a icon of a PC communicating with a database.

There are some included with VB, but I doubt if any of these would be appropriate for what you're wanting to convey. The best thing to do is search the web. Or, create your own.

> Also, can someone help me in what code/controls may be needed for this to > work.

There's a control specifically for this included with VB Pro and Ent editions. It's the Animation control which is part of Windows Common Controls 2.

--

Mike

Microsoft MVP Visual Basic