Just to offer an opinion, Jeff. I find your "correctional posts" more annoying than the OP's future post. Not everybody may sort newsgroup messages the way that you do. If the OP is future posting by several *days* or longer, maybe you're providing a "service". But you even "correct" posts that are merely an hour or so in the future. I find that extremely annoying. Unless the OP's post is significantly in the future, why don't you just let it go, as it will relatively quickly get corrected by itself? Just my 2 cents, but I doubt I'm alone in this (apparently, nobody else will just speak up, and you all know I have no problem with speaking what's on my mind <g>).
