

Re: Who needs Tony Snow...

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/VB/microsoft.public.vb.general.discussion/2006-04/msg02579.html>

- From: erewhon@xxxxxxxxxx (J French)
 - Date: Fri, 28 Apr 2006 11:51:37 GMT
-

On Thu, 27 Apr 2006 15:38:36 -0700, "Karl E. Peterson" <karl@xxxxxxxx> wrote:

... when you have Rockford Lhotka, Billy Hollis, Bill Vaughn, and Kathleen Dollard?

Bush should hire this group of kool-aid drinkers, eh?!

Dr. Dobb's | Visual Studio 2005: Unstable and Highly Recommended
http://ddj.com/dept/windows/186500706?cid=RSSfeed_DDJ_Windows/.NET

When I try opening that link I get a 'Certificate' warning
– then 'there was an internal error'
– then ... plonk

But it works if I say 'No' to the certificate

Jeez – are these people programmers or 'lab rats' ?

<quote>

The controls appear in the toolbox, and when I drag one over to the form and drop it, sometimes this problem appears. That is frequent enough that I have to tell my audience that this is likely to happen during the course of a demonstration. I do demonstrations a lot, and it happens in front of audiences, and I shut the development environment down, and bring it back up, and the problem is gone.

</quote>

Personally I would be rummaging for the Hard Disk caddie with the previous version.

These people sound like support staff rather than coders.

Re: Who needs Tony Snow...