Let me apologize up front about the length of this post, but I want to get opinions and I need to provide some background...

I'd advice posting this question in other groups. Posting a question to a VB6 group and asking what language to use is bound to give you biased answers. Most people here are bitter about the improvements in VB7.

Nobody is bitter about any "improvements". People are disgusted with the failure to maintain the core language syntax and the lack of any viable migration path. Keep trying, someday you may get it.
