So, as I said right from the start, using GDI+ in VB6 requires calling APIs.

Man, are you think or what ?

Am I "think"? he he

The fact that these APIs are in a typelib makes little difference.

Oh, but having them inside dotnet libraries does huh ? What clueless nonsense.

Give it up for christ sake. Here I was thinking you had a clue. The simple FACT is that VB6 does not have a native interface for GDI+ and calling of APIs is required. This is not disputable and only the most stupid of people would argue otherwise.
