

Re: VB or?

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/VB/microsoft.public.vb.general.discussion/2008-04/msg02236.html>

- From: "Bill McCarthy" <Bill@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 22 Apr 2008 12:09:26 +1000
-

"Karl E. Peterson" <karl@xxxxxxxx> wrote in message
<news:%23vtJsMBpIHA.672@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>

Earl Partridge wrote:

I am at a complete loss to understand what in my original post caused such a storm of completely unrelated discussions.

Yeah, you didn't deserve any of it. I believe our government would tag you "collateral damage." IOW, you wandered into the middle of a firefight, and (rightfully) had no idea what was going on around you. There have been a bunch of trolls here lately, and they've set tempers and keyboards on edge. On behalf of the group, if I may be so pretentious, apologies...

--

Apologies are in deed in order. This however is not a one off incident, it is instead yet another example of the crap that's been going on in here. Again we see Mike Williams jump on a poster with the most ridiculous rhetoric, all part of his anti-dotnet nonsense. Was he scared that the best answer was indeed to use .NET...
Apparently so.

And of course Karl, I shouldn't have to remind you of your recent attempts at encouraging flaming in here, especially those unsupported rants you waged against all dotnet developers. Cause and effect is plain to see just as soon as you learn to breathe.

.