If Best Buy could sell M&M's for 20 bucks, they would.

They've been selling Windows for years.

For 20 bucks, is it a better version of ubuntu ?

How many Linux versions was any store selling when XP came out?

That's the point, moron. Best Buy is about as computer clueless a store that you can find and even they are offering Ubuntu. It's the sign of the times.

BTW, Mr Reading Comprehension Impaired, they are selling support, not the OS.

Re: Best Buy to Offer Ubuntu

Support ?

You mean the "phone tech's" who just got a crash course in ubuntu ?

Yeah...there gonna be able to help someone , NOT !

Ubuntu isn't a sign of the times, its a fad.
