I am guessing yes. I went to their site, they had info about the trouble from the last update. I found the download for what was supposed to be the Vista version, and downloaded it. When it installed I kept getting a message about Vista blocking a driver as incompatible. The ZA did it's install, but I could not get it to open. I assumed this was because of the blocked driver? I kept getting the message popping up until I took ZA back out. Post the link and I will give it another shot.

Sounds like exactly the problem I had with the older version.

Try this download, see if it helps:

http://download.zonealarm.com/bin/free/1025\_zl/zlsSetup\_71\_254\_000\_en.exe

Well that was close, but still no cigar. That one loads fine, no conflict but as soon as it installs it will not let me open my browser. I can connect to the net, but browser is blocked from opening. Tired turning it off, still blocked, so I had to remove it again, then things are fine. I assume this is only their free version that they have not got around to fixing yet? If there pay version is doing this too they will soon be out of business. I can see why they are not going great guns to fix the free version. I am sure they will get it right eventually and I'll give it another shot. For right now the free one from Webroot seems to be doing fine.
Thanks for the link anyway.
